

The 2013 event

Traditional festival

THE popular Lymm May Queen festival takes over the village this weekend.

And there will be a new starting point this year for the parade, with those taking part gathering at the Lymm Hotel from 1pm.

Eva Cope, aged 10, will be this year's Lymm May queen and Eleanor Lawton, aged nine, will be rose queen for the traditional festival on Saturday.

Eva will be crowned by Mary Kerfoot, a life-long member of the May queen committee, and Eleanor will be crowned by Pauline Higham, a former may queen herself.

The parade, which this year is themed on space, leaves at 1.30pm.

For coverage from the festival, see next Thursday's Warrington Guardian.